A Welcome from Our Volunteer & Community Outreach Coordinator

Welcome to the Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission (MADACC) volunteer program. We know you have many options as a volunteer, so we appreciate that MADACC is the organization you want to serve.

You will be joining a team of caring and enthusiastic individuals dedicated to the welfare of animals in our community. Whether it is doing laundry and dishes, dog walking, fostering, special events, etc., the work you will do for MADACC has an immediate and tangible impact on the lives of the animals in our care.

– Kathy Shillinglaw

A Welcome from Executive Director

Milwaukee Area Domestic Animal Control Commission (MADACC) is one of the most challenging and rewarding organizations to be a part of in our local animal welfare community.

Each day we are asked to confront animal neglect and abuse, to care for stray and abandoned animals and to do all we can to ensure our animals are given the opportunity to get a second chance at finding a forever family. We cannot do this without the help of our community volunteers. Our staff is so grateful for all that the volunteers do for us and look forward to working with you to provide a better life for the animals at MADACC.

– Karen Sparapani

History

MADACC opened August 1, 1999 to provide animal care and control services for the 19 municipalities (cities and villages) of Milwaukee County, after the Wisconsin Humane Society terminated its contract with the county to provide animal control services.

MADACC is an intergovernmental entity that consists of a Board of Directors with representation from each municipality as well as a seven-member Operations Committee. Under the direction of the Board of Directors, MADACC's Executive Director is responsible for managing the comprehensive animal care and control program for the 19 municipalities in Milwaukee County, with an annual budget of approximately $2.9 million and 35 employees.

Mission

To provide animal regulation and care services which protect the health, public safety and welfare of the people and animals in Milwaukee County.

About Us

MADACC is an open-admission animal shelter that currently rescues and assures safe, temporary shelter and veterinary and humane care for more than 11,000 stray, unwanted, abandoned, mistreated and injured animals each year - more than any other animal care and control shelter in Wisconsin.

MADACC provides a central location for owners to find and recover their lost pets, rescues strays and removes dangerous animals from public areas, providing effective animal control services by active enforcement of Wisconsin State Statutes pertaining to animal welfare.

What Does MADACC Do?

MADACC rescues and holds stray (lost pets), injured, sick, mistreated or dangerous domestic animals. We operate a dispatch office to receive complaints of stray animals in the community.

The Wisconsin Humane Society takes injured wildlife and owner surrenders.

What Happens to the Animals?

- Upon admittance, stray animals are scanned for a microchip, given a health exam, dewormed and vaccinated, given food, water and clean bedding.
- Its photograph is posted onto MADACC's website, www.madacc.org, which is updated hourly from 8 a.m. to midnight daily.
- By law, animals are sheltered for a minimum of 7 days.
- If unclaimed after the seven-day stray hold, adoptable animals are evaluated for health and temperament and offered to local shelters, breed placement groups, or placed into foster care.

- MADACC has a limited in-house/foster-based adoption program which focuses on the placement of our largest population of animals, which are cats, Pit Bulls and Pit Bull mixes. MADACC holds periodic dog and cat adoption events both on-site and off-site. Adoption applications can be accessed via MADACC's website or filled out at MADACC.

Friends of MADACC is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting community awareness and improving the welfare of Milwaukee County's homeless animals.

The vision of Friends of MADACC is to:

- Reunite a greater percentage of lost pets with owners.
- Help more homeless animals find new forever homes.
- Improve quality of life for animals.
- Promote community awareness.
- Control pet overpopulation.

Battle Against Dogfighting (BAD) is a comprehensive, city-wide program to educate the community and protect animals from the horrors of dogfighting. They use a proven multi-agency approach to unite the community against dogfighting and to prevent dog owners from participating in this blood "sport." Through education, early intervention, and community involvement, BAD promotes programs that stop the violence associated with dogfighting and animal abuse; educates the public about humane treatment of animals and responsible pet ownership; trains youth and community leaders who can take the message of compassion throughout their own communities; and connects pet owners to low-cost and free resources.

BAD collaborates with the City of Milwaukee programs, the Milwaukee Police Department, community partners, businesses, schools, and churches to spread the message that compassion towards animals makes for safer and more humane communities.

If you are interested in volunteering for Friends of MADACC or BAD, please email them at friends@madacc.org.

The Cats' Voice, a MADACC volunteer group, was established on March 9, 2011. The Cats' Voice is dedicated to providing and promoting the health and stabilization of area cats. They provide education to the community on key topics related to cat health and welfare through seminars, materials and an email help line. They also organize on-site adoption events in the MADACC conference room. If you are interested in volunteering for The Cats' Voice you can email them at catsvoice@madacc.org.

General Guidelines

If a bite or scratch breaks your skin, or any injury occurs, notify a supervisor immediately. If a supervisor is not available, please go to the front desk and ask to speak to a vet tech.

If you suspect an animal is sick or injured, please notify a vet tech or a supervisor immediately.

Always wash/sanitize your hands between handling animals in order to reduce the spread of disease.

Sanitation and Disease Prevention

The health of the animals in our facility is a priority. Everyone must follow sanitation guidelines in an effort to minimize disease transmission. The opportunity for animals to be transferred into an adoption program increases when they are healthy. Therefore, it is in their best interest to keep them as healthy as possible. The following are some guidelines to follow regarding sanitation.

- Always wash and sanitize hands between animals. There are hand washing sinks in the break room and bathrooms. There are liquid hand sanitizer dispensers in each kennel room.
- Walk dogs in and out of building following procedures.
- Do not reach into cages to pet animals. This can spread disease.
- Dispose of dog feces in appropriate trash containers. Do not leave any feces on the ground.
- Only occupy volunteer designated areas of the building. Stay out of off limit areas. This is to minimize the spread of disease transmission. The off limit areas are the quarantine rooms, treatment area, euthanasia room, and the unloading area.
- If you observe any illness in an animal please notify the vet tech staff.

MADACC reserves the right to terminate a volunteer's service at any time, with or without warning. The following will result in termination:

- Theft
- Substance abuse
- Being under the influence of alcohol or drugs while on premises
- Having any illegal contraband in your possession while on premises
- Discourtesy/rudeness to another volunteer, staff member or citizen
- Any act of cruelty to an animal
- Careless, negligent performance of volunteer duties
- Altering a kennel card in any way
- Interfering verbally or physically with an employee or member of the public
- Sexual harassment
- Deviating from sanitation/disease prevention guidelines
- Unauthorized photography or audio/video recording in non-public areas of the MADACC building
- Interacting with animals not approved for socialization without explicit authorization from a supervisor
- Disclosure or removal from the premises of confidential MADACC information. Confidential information includes information, in any form, related to MADACC's operations and finances, management, employees, animal owners, animal claimants, animal attack victims, animal euthanasia, animal bite records, animal medical records, animal behavioral records, and similar information, which is not generally known by or readily available to the public. Confidential information also includes any codes, passwords, usernames, or other identification or information necessary to access any of the MADACC's computer files, e-mail accounts, voicemail systems, and other systems and accounts belonging to MADACC.

If you have a problem or question, please talk to the Volunteer coordinator or a supervisor. If neither is available, please go to the front desk and ask to speak with a vet tech.

Smoking Policy

For health and safety considerations, MADACC prohibits smoking in MADACC facilities. If you wish to smoke you may do so outside of the building.

Contact with the media

The Executive Director or designated supervisors shall be responsible for all official contacts with the news media, including answering of questions from the media. If you are approached by a member of the media you may politely refer them to the Executive Director.

Grievances

Any and all complaints regarding MADACC, its employees or its policies will only be accepted if written, signed and given to the Volunteer Coordinator.

Why Does MADACC Euthanize Animals?

Euthanasia is the term used for humanely putting an animal to death. Euthanasia is an unfortunate reality in many shelters around the country, and particularly for open-admission animal shelters and animal control facilities.

MADACC is an open-admission animal control facility. As such, MADACC never turns an animal away regardless of its age, medical condition, breed, physical condition, temperament or the current kennel space available.

MADACC works with over 150 shelters and rescues across the state, with the goal of transferring as many adoptable animals as possible into their adoption programs. In addition, MADACC has a limited adoption program that focus on Pit Bull type dogs and cats. MADACC staff is proud of the fact that every animal is treated as an individual, and they provide the best humane care for every animal that enters the shelter.

Animals may be euthanized at MADACC because they are sick or injured. While their medical condition may be treatable, it may not be financially realistic for us to do so, or the animal's prognosis may be poor. What is treatable for an animal living at home with its owner may not be treatable when the animal is living in a stressful shelter environment. Placing these animals with responsible shelters and rescues with the resources to treat these animals is an option utilized whenever appropriate.

Animals may be euthanized because they possess behaviors that make them poor candidates for adoption. MADACC has a responsibility not only to the animals of Milwaukee County, but also to the people who will be adopting these animals, and the people who share a community with them. We cannot in good conscience adopt out animals that are potentially dangerous, or who have severe problems adapting to change. Our staff is well-versed in animal behavior – while a volunteer may feel that an animal is “fine”, our staff that works with these animals throughout the duration of their stay, may see something that a non-professional could miss.

Sadly, animals are sometimes euthanized because space is tight. The reason MADACC and shelters in general exist is that there are too many animals and not enough homes. This is particularly true for the two most vulnerable pet populations in our communities – Pit Bull type dogs and cats. We do not have a time limit for our animals, but there may be times when we are housing an abundance of a particular type of animal, and we don't have any other options. At that time the animal in the shelter that is deemed the least likely to be adopted (due to age, temperament, illness and other factors) is the animal that will be chosen for euthanasia.

It is very difficult emotionally for our staff to have to make a decision to euthanize any animal, and then to have to perform the procedure. Euthanasia is not taken lightly and it can raise the stress level of the employees a great deal. Volunteers are asked to respect our employees and the difficult decisions they make on a daily basis. We recognize that you may not always understand the reasons as to why an animal was euthanized, but it is highly inappropriate to confront the MADACC staff and make their jobs even more difficult by questioning them or challenging them on a euthanasia decision. You are to consult with the Volunteer Coordinator, Shelter Manager or Executive Director only. Likewise, if you are unsure what has happened to an animal you've gotten to know here, you are not to ask the staff. The reason is simple - if there was an unhappy ending to that animal's story, we don't expect the employees to relive the event for each curious volunteer. It is far too stressful for staff in an already stressful job. Please see the Volunteer Coordinator and you will be given an honest answer and will have the opportunity to discuss your feelings and any concerns you might have.

We also ask that you be very careful and use discretion when discussing your feelings about a particular sad ending with other volunteers. Dwelling on the negative isn't good for anyone's morale and often leads to the spread of inaccurate information as the story gets retold down the line. You will hear of sad endings, but never lose sight of the happy endings. They far outnumber the sad ones. Employees and volunteers should focus on their successes and be proud that what they're doing is ensuring more pets are finding their forever homes.

Zoonotic Diseases

Worker Safety in the Animal Shelter*

Zoonosis

Zoonosis is the term used to describe diseases that can be passed from animals to humans and vice versa. This is an issue of special importance to staff who work in animal shelters because of the unknown background and high incidence of disease in shelter animals. Veterinary staff who work in animal hospitals, zoos and laboratories, for example, know more about the medical history of their patients than shelter workers dealing with large numbers of stray animals on a daily basis. There are at least 200 known zoonotic diseases, and more are being continually added to the list. Fortunately for most shelter workers dealing mainly with dogs and cats, the list of zoonotic diseases to be concerned about is much shorter than 200. The good news is also that most of these diseases can be avoided or their impact minimized by following a few straightforward rules.

The single most effective thing you can do to avoid contracting a disease from an animal or from the shelter environment is to

ALWAYS WASH YOUR HANDS AFTER HANDLING ANYTHING.

In addition, make certain to wash before handling any food or putting your hands in your mouth or up to your face and eyes.

Most diseases are spread through the oral route or by penetration through breaks in the skin or mucus membranes. This one simple step of hand washing will prevent the spread of most diseases by avoiding the route of infection. This is not fool proof, however, as some disease organisms can penetrate intact skin or are inhaled.

Other precautions:

- Wear gloves when cleaning and disinfecting cages, food and water bowls, litter pans, etc. This is especially important if you have any open wounds on your hands and arms. Wash your hands after removing the gloves. There may have been a break in the gloves.
- Seek prompt medical attention for any scratches, bites or wounds received on the job.
- Use gloves and the proper equipment when handling dangerous animals to avoid injury.
- Wash and disinfect any wounds received immediately and seek professional attention.
- Avoid self-treatment.
- Wash hands using iodine based disinfectant soaps.
- According to the CDC, in order to wash ones' hands properly, hands should be lathered and rubbed together vigorously for at least 10-15 seconds, and then rinsed thoroughly under a forceful stream of warm water.
- Avoid eating food in areas where animals are housed or treated.
- Avoid letting animals lick your face or wounds.

- Pregnant women should avoid cleaning litter boxes because of the risk of contracting Toxoplasmosis. The risk is actually minimal and most cases of Toxoplasmosis are not transmitted to humans from cat feces, but from ingestion of contaminated or undercooked meat. Prompt daily cleaning of the litter box disposes of fecal material before it becomes infective. However, to be on the safe side, this duty should be assigned to others.
- If you do become ill, let your physician know that you work with animals.
- If you don't know if a disease or condition is zoonotic or not, assume that it is and treat it accordingly. Wear gloves and masks, isolate the animal, wash hands, and DISINFECT, DISINFECT, DISINFECT!
- It should always be remembered that most people who work with or own animals do not contract any of these diseases. The people most at risk are the elderly, young children and people who are immune-compromised, such as HIV patients or people taking immunosuppressive drugs. The rewards obtained from the human animal bond far outweigh the risks of becoming ill from contact with animals.
- It is important to recognize the signs that an animal is sick. Some signs are more obvious than others. Important symptoms of disease may include: Depression, pale gums, loss of appetite, dehydration, fever, vomiting, diarrhea, ocular and nasal discharges, reddened eyes, hair loss or reddened skin, shaking the head, coughing, sneezing, lethargy, straining to urinate or defecate, blood in the stool or urine, lumps or swellings, penile or vaginal discharges, neurological problems like star gazing, head tilt, head pressing, seizuring, etc.
- Diseases are transmitted by a number of mechanisms. Most diseases are either caused by bacteria, parasites, viruses, or fungi (the causative agent of ringworm) and are transmitted by the fecal-oral route or through breaks in the mucus membranes or skin. Staff should understand the modes of disease transmission in order to keep themselves healthy and safe.
- The most commonly encountered diseases are caused by direct contact with infected tissues, aerosolized particles, contaminated feces, urine or saliva, or through contact with grooming utensils, etc. Fomites are one of the most common ways diseases are transmitted and one of the most overlooked mechanisms. They are particularly dangerous when dealing with viruses or fungi that can survive in the environment for long periods of time and are resistant to routine disinfecting techniques.
